Energy in Gabon comes from two main sources, fossil-fuels and hydroelectricity. Gabon also relies heavily on oil for its export revenues, exporting both crude oil and petroleum. In terms its oil reserves, the country is one of the richest in sub-Saharan Africa, ranking 5th after Nigeria, Angola, Sudan, South Sudan, and Uganda. Renewable energy in the form of solar power is virtually nonexistent.

BW Energy holds 37.5% working interest and is the operator of the blocks, which significantly expands the resource base for infrastructure-led exploration in Gabon. The blocks are adjacent to BW Energy's Dussafu Marin licence offshore southern Gabon, covering a combined area of 4,918 km². (see map below)

La compagnie pétrolière, qui vise une production de 40 000 barils par jour et la production indicative, annonce la signature d'accords définitifs avec le gouvernement pour l'exploitation des blocs offshore de Niosi et Guduma Marin. Ces accords incluent des contrats de partage de production (PSC) couvrant les deux blocs.

Si la récente opération d'acquisition d'Assala Energy par Gabon Oil Company (GOC) a généré un vent d'optimisme, ses modalités complexes ont soulevé des interrogations. GabonReview revient, pour les clarifier, sur les détails financiers de cette transaction stratégique pour le Gabon, sujette à interprétations erronées.

Gabon elen energy

Energy is a large contributor to CO₂ - the burning of fossil fuels accounts for around three-quarters of global greenhouse gas emissions. So, reducing energy consumption can inevitably help to reduce emissions.

Gabon is currently witnessing a resurgence in its oil and gas sector, catalyzed by a recent offshore discovery and a series of production start-ups led by key industry players. With a forecast production capacity of 200,000 barrels per day (bpd) - leveraging its estimated 2 billion barrels of oil reserves - the nation is on track to see substantial sector growth.
