

What is shell's Bess deal with Penso power?

The deal is the first long-term tolling agreement for a single BESS asset in the UK, providing a new revenue structure template for future BESS opportunities across Europe. Under the agreement, Shell will trade the BESS into a range of ancillary services and wholesale markets, paying BW ESS and Penso Power a fixed fee.

What is shell doing with BW ESS & Penso power?

Under the agreement, Shell will trade the BESS into a range of ancillary services and wholesale markets, paying BW ESS and Penso Power a fixed fee. The 100MW/330 megawatt-hour (MWh) Bramley BESS site, currently under construction in Hampshire, UK, is also the first project in Europe to deploy Sungrow's PowerTitan 2.0 liquid-cooled BESS system.

Why is Iran a problem for Shell?

Iran's reach is especially entrenched in energy, where 20 years after the US-led invasion, chronic under-investment and corruption has left Iraq heavily reliant on imports of Iranian gas and electricity, which provide more than a third of its power needs. This is not only an issue for Shell.

Will shell pay the owners a fixed fee for Bess?

Shell will pay the owners a fixed fee for the BESS and keep all the upside. It may be the first tolling deal of this size for a single asset, but the first major UK tolling deal announced in the UK was by Gresham House and Octopus Energy for a 568MW portfolio of operational projects earlier this year.

What is shell doing in Iraq?

Shell's joint venture, which has received World Bank funding, has been widely praised for its role capturing gas that was previously flared at Iraq's oilfields and processing it for use in local power generation, cooking or export.

Who is the biggest beneficiary of a Shell-backed gas project in Iraq?

An Iranian company is the biggest beneficiary of a power plant poised to supply a Shell-backed gas project in Iraq, showing the pervasive presence of Tehran's business interests in its neighbour and putting the UK group at odds with the west's shifting geopolitical priorities in the Middle East.
