What is a Younicos battery based energy storage system?

Centrica (UK) Younicos has been selected by Centrica to design and deliver one of the world's largest battery-based energy storage systems. To be completed by winter 2018, the 49 megawatt (MW) lithium-ion system will respond to fluctuations in electrical demand in less than a second, to maintain electric power frequency and stability.

What did Younicos do?

Younicos was a German-American technology company that developed and sold energy storage systems and control software. The company integrated battery technologies, power electronics and control software to create systems that respond to the energy management requirements of power networks of all sizes, including micro-grids.

Did Younicos buy Xtreme Power?

(Prince declined to confirm or deny the $200 million figure.) Last year, Younicos bought the assets of Xtreme Power, a bankrupt U.S. grid battery maker and control software vendor, adding about 60 megawatts of working projects to its portfolio.

How much money has Younicos raised?

According to Bloomberg, Younicos has raised about $200 million from backers including Samsung and German-Japanese flow battery maker Gildemeister/DMG Mori Seiki. (Prince declined to confirm or deny the $200 million figure.)

Energy from solar and wind sources could be backed up using an intelligent FIAMM sodium nickel chloride battery to form a microgrid, said Younicos spokesperson Philip Hiersemenzel, dramatically reducing the cost of its power. The island of Tilos, in the south-eastern Aegean Sea midway between Kos and Rhodes, could even become an exporter of its ...

German energy storage provider Younicos is introducing C& I battery storage systems on a rental basis. The company says service is ideal for offgrid industries such as the mining sector.
